

GUT FEELING: MAKE YOUR MICROBIOME HAPPY WITH GERMAN FOOD

Royette Tavernier*, JIANGANG HE, Pinar Kuru, Sram Boothalingam, Kathrin Flasskamp and Veronika Hoeke

International Committee of the Northwestern University Postdoctoral Forum, Northwestern University, Evanston, IL, U.S.A

INTRODUCTION

Each year, millions of visitors and natives convene in Munich, Bavaria, Germany to celebrate the world's biggest folk festival: Oktoberfest! Since we are NU postdoctoral fellows who cannot afford to skip out on our research responsibilities (or afford a flight to Europe) at the start of the fall quarter, we have embarked on an experiment to bring Oktoberfest to you!

Importantly, past research has shown that FREE FOOD and a chance to complain about work amongst colleagues are highly motivating factors that encourage postdocs to come out and socialize.

METHOD

Participants: NU Postdocs
(space is limited, R.S.V.P here)

DATE: Thursday September 24

TIME: 7:00-9:30pm

LOCATION: Chicago Brauhaus
(4732 N Lincoln Ave, Chicago, IL, 60625)

METHOD con't

GETTING THERE:

1. from Evanston campus
2. from Downtown campus
3. Uber (Let us know if this is your preference when you R.S.V.P so we can coordinate shared rides with other Uber riders)*

HYPOTHESIS

We hypothesize that your taste buds (and gut microbiome) will be pleased to savour mouth-watering Bavarian cuisine (e.g., Bratkartoffeln, Spätzle, Sauerkraut, Bratwurst)

DISCUSSION

There will be prizes, games, music, and dancing!!!

Come out and celebrate
OKTOBERFEST!!!

Corresponding author:*

E-mail: nupostdocforum@gmail.com